A PREJUDICED LISTING OF DAYLILIES

[1963]

There's more to a daylily than the individual flower. That is why we call this list 'prejudiced'. We grow over 400 varieties, but do not list them all because we don't feel that they are all worth garden space. The ones we do list are those we feel are well worth growing. However, you are welcome to visit the nursery. We have an Exhibition Bed where close to 300 varieties are allowed to reach clump size and show their best. Our daylily season opens about May 23rd with Elfin, the greatest bloom occurs between July 7-Aug. 7.

TERMS - Cash with order, please. All orders of $5.00 and over post-age paid. Under $5.00 please add 50 cents.
All plants guaranteed. Only blooming size divisions sent. We will add gift plants according to the size of your order. Shipping until October 1.

Dates listed below are from established plants, wherever possible, but these will vary according to weather conditions and locality. An asterisk (*) after description indicates variety stays open late in the evening. F. - fragrant

CULTURE

It is true that hemerocallis will survive in almost any soil, in sun or shade. But to be at their best, one should plant daylilies with some care. A large hole should be dug, plenty of humus added, such as peat moss, well rotted manure or compost, and a generous handful of any well balanced fertilizer. Most soils will benefit from the addition of lime at planting time. The crown of the plant should be only an inch and a half below the soil surface. The flowers will be more numerous and larger if you are generous with water. Allow 2½-3 feet between plants and you will not have to separate them for many years.

To learn more about daylilies, join the American Hemerocallis Society. Dues are $3.50 per year. Send dues to the secretary:

Olive M. Hindman, 404 Weigle Ave., Sebring, Florida

You are cordially invited to attend meetings of the Long Island Daylily Society. For membership application, write to Esther Deutsch, R.D.4, Straight Path, Huntington, N.Y.
